LADD BIRO
'REACHING OUT'

Ladd Biro comes to music naturally: his father played violin, his mother, piano, and he began joined the school band playing emulating his older brother, he formed a musical group made up of school chums. "We called it "Duration," he recalls ruefully, "and it seemed like a cool name. Then along came a nasal spray by that name, and . . . well, it sort of lost its cool." He played bass in that band, and became proficient enough to later join his older brother's band. They later parted - amicably - but by then, music was his lifeblood, and he's never looked back.

Ladd Biro has long been known as an excellent sideman, pianist, but more recently gained widespread notice as a vocalist and songwriter. His breakout song "Reach Out!" - has been praised by listeners and radio stations with dis-

CD also includes "Shades of White" which in addition to being called "The best new Christmas song in years,"
