“Overwhelming”.

That was the response given by Dan Schneider when asked about performing the National Anthem on 9/11 at the Friday night's Cleveland Indians baseball game. “I had heard horror stories from other singers about the problems caused by the sound system and the sound delay. We had absolutely no problem hearing ourselves through the house sound system. In fact, seeing the crowd, ourselves on the scoreboard and the significance of 9/11, it almost brought tears to our eyes. All of these aspects certainly enhanced our performance”.

“They (Cleveland Indians) told us they want us back next year, which is the best compliment we could receive”.

Congratulations are in order to Dan and his co-singers on a job well done!
